120. Of what use is a sustainable competitive advantage to a firm?

121. The text states, "Viewing customers with a lifetime value perspective rather than on a transaction-by-transaction basis is key to modern customer retention programs." Create an example demonstrating a lifetime value perspective. Why is customer retention almost always a profitable marketing strategy?

Answers to the first part will vary, but should demonstrate how much business a customer brings in over a lifetime. For example, a customer spending $4 at Starbucks, five days per week, for 20 years equals $20,800. Customer retention is profitable because it costs more to get new customers than to retain existing ones.

When selling yourself, you are a product including all the skills, aptitudes, and attitudes you bring to the market. What is a sustainable competitive advantage? What can you do to give yourself a sustainable competitive advantage in the marketplace?

A sustainable competitive advantage is something you can persistently do better than the competition. Skills including statistical analysis, ability to use technology, communication, and accounting are all important and valuable. Aptitudes including rational thinking and problem solving are lifelong abilities that can benefit any organization. Attitudes such as persistence, a sense of humor, and teamwork are valuable in any business environment. 132. Your new sales manager, who previously worked for Boston Consulting Group, directs each sales rep to "toss out the dogs," "exploit the stars," and "milk the cows." Translate this into everyday English: What is the sales manager asking the sales reps to do?

Your sales manager wants you to stop selling those products that are in slow-growth markets and in which the company has a small relative market share. The manager also wants you to spend more time and effort selling products that are in high-growth markets and in which the company has a high market share. Finally, you should continue to sell but not put additional effort into high relative market share, low-market-growth products, referred to as cash cows.

133. After finishing his marketing degree, Ryan inherited the family Shrimp Shack restaurant. The restaurant is a small, local institution that beach visitors have been coming to for decades. Ryan wants to make his business grow and is considering either a market penetration or market development strategy. Describe what Ryan will likely do if he pursues either strategy.

If Ryan pursues a market penetration strategy, he will likely expand advertising and promotion, maybe adding billboards, promoting specials, adding hours, and likely expanding the restaurant to serve more customers.

If Ryan pursues a market development strategy, he will attempt to serve new market segments. Since his product is a restaurant, market development would likely include opening additional locations in other areas, offering the same menu.

134. Garden Gate is a one-location nursery business, selling plants and flowers for home gardeners. The new owners want to grow through either a product development or diversification strategy. What will the owners likely do if they pursue either strategy?

If they pursue a product development strategy, they will offer new products or services to the firm's current target market. A nursery could logically provide a landscape design consulting service, landscape maintenance service, soil and pest testing service, or add additional products such as indigenous plants. If they pursue a diversification strategy, they would market new products or services to a market segment they are not currently serving. Targeting landscape design or maintenance services for commercial customers would be one type of diversification.

136. Every summer, university administrators attempt to estimate how many students will show up in the fall. When August arrives, they hire part-time instructors and reassign faculty to teach the courses students want. In the spring, administrators often go on a retreat to consider how to do things differently next year. What phase of the strategic planning process do they engage in during each of the three seasons (summer, fall, and spring)?

Summer—planning; fall—implementation; spring—control.

139. Several years ago, the Florida Orange Juice Growers Association ran a promotional campaign with the slogan "Orange juice. It isn't just for breakfast anymore." Based on this slogan, which of the four growth strategies was the association pursuing? Briefly explain your reasoning.

The best answer is that this is a market penetration strategy. The slogan seeks to increase sales of a current product (orange juice), which reduces the options to market penetration or market development. "It isn't just for breakfast anymore" sounds like the Growers Association want those who drink orange juice at breakfast time to consider it at other times of the day too. In other words, it focuses on increasing usage among current customers, which is market penetration.

Some students might say that it is a market development strategy. For this to be correct, they would have to argue that a different market segment that currently doesn't drink orange juice is being targeted.

140. Suppose that you and a friend decide to turn your favorite sports activity—inline skating—into a business. You plan to design a line of fashionable clothing that integrates elbow and kneepads. For each of the four macro strategies, briefly describe the most important thing your company should do if you intend to focus on that strategy. Your answers should be specific to the inline skating business.

There are many correct answers; here is a sample. To make this question easier, you could ask the student to provide an idea for just one or two of the macro strategies.

- Product excellence: Focus on continually improving the products and making them the most advanced ones on the market, perhaps using stylish yet durable fabrics that won't be damaged in a fall. Then work to develop a clear positioning statement for your brand.
- Customer excellence: Offer outstanding service, perhaps including live chat on the website as well as no-hassle returns if the customer changes his or her mind about a purchase.
- Operational excellence: Develop close relationships with suppliers of fabric and other raw materials and with retailers.
- Locational excellence: In addition to having a top-notch website, try to get your products into as many retail stores as possible, probably focusing on sporting goods stores.

141. Conduct a brief SWOT analysis of your prospects of finding a good job related to your major when you graduate (if you already have such a job, think about finding a job with more responsibility). Be sure to include at least one factor representing each of the four major sections of a SWOT analysis, and be sure to label each factor to indicate which of those four sections it belongs in.

To make sure the students clearly classify the factors, you might want to provide an answer space with four sections; in each one, include a blank line for the name of the section and additional space for the factor.

Students will come up with a variety of answers depending on their individual situations. They will probably need to do some speculation for opportunities and threats. Here is a sample:

- Strengths—students might mention internship experience, past work experience, classes taken, personal characteristics, or personal contacts
- Weaknesses—possibilities include lack of experience, inability to relocate, or a low GPA
- Opportunities—could include expected growth in the field, a new firm starting up in the area that will be hiring, or a shortage of graduates in the field
- Threats—could include the recession, a glut of graduates in the field, or reduced demand for professionals in the field

142. In July 2010, Microsoft discontinued the Kin, its social networking phone, after just six weeks of disappointing sales. During what step of the strategic marketing planning process would Microsoft have made the decision to stop offering the product?

Step 5—Evaluate performance using marketing metrics.

Some students might also answer "Control phase." Strictly speaking, this is a phase and not a step; however, Step 5 is the only step of the process that fits into the Control phase, so you may want to accept both as correct answers.

If you want to make this question more difficult, you can add to the question the following: What should Microsoft have done before deciding to discontinue the product? The answer: Microsoft should have determined the causes for the disappointing sales to determine whether or not another action (perhaps a different target market, a price adjustment, or a revised promotion plan) could put sales back on track.

143. Nike, the prominent athletic shoe manufacturer, relies heavily on athlete sponsorships to build demand for its products. Spectators at major sporting events—both those attending in person and those watching at home—frequently see the Nike "swoosh" logo worn by elite athletes. Given the vast worldwide audience for Olympics broadcasts, an Olympic year gives Nike increased exposure. On a Nike situation analysis in an Olympic year, would you consider this exposure to be a strength or an opportunity? Explain your reasoning; be specific.

A reasonable argument can be made for this being a strength or an opportunity, so this is about the rationale offered. This could be viewed as a strength in that Nike's logo is ubiquitous and well recognized, and customers in Nike's target markets will be reminded of the many sports for which Nike offers shoes and apparel. It could also be viewed as an opportunity to strengthen Nike's position overseas (due to international viewership) and to increase awareness of the breadth of Nike's products (due to increased viewership of niche sports that ordinarily don't get much attention).
